

Students intern with Europe District

Twelve students from Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU) spent the summer with Europe District, gaining valuable hands-on experience in the engineering field.

Europe District has participated in the HBCU internship program for the past five years, working very closely with the organization Advancing Minorities' Interests in Engineering (AMIE) — a nonprofit coalition of nine Historically Black Colleges and Universities.

The organization's effort is designed to increase the number of African-Americans entering the field of engineering.

This year's participating students are pictured above after presenting their final briefing for the summer. (Photo by Europe District)

HBCU Students

LaMar Bayne
Morgan State University
Marnyka Blair
Hampton University
Adrian DeVillasee
Morgan State University
Jason Gibbs
Morgan State University
Breda Platt
Florida A&M University
(May 98 Graduate)
Nicole Saunders
Howard University
Octavia Thornton
Morgan State University
Stephanie Vereen
Florida A&M University
Darren Walls
North Carolina A&T
State University
Nataki Wilder
Florida State University
Crystal Williams
University of Oklahoma
Michael Williams
Florida State University